EXAMPLE SPEECHES

STRUCTURED SPEECH

Honourable chairs, honourable delegates,
The Kingdom of Sweden is very eager to start debating and negotiating concerning the topic of Indigenous Peoples, because we believe that this specific issue deserves our attention and our action. It is at the heart of our delegation's objectives to also give people, feeling that they cannot identify with a country's dominant culture for any reason whatsoever, the same opportunities and respectful treatment as we would give any other citizen. The Kingdom of Sweden believes that, during this debate, three main steps can be taken:

- firstly, we plead for constant attention to this matter, because we believe that we can no longer ignore its existence;
- secondly, we would like to emphasise the need of better regulations in all member states regarding the rights of indigenous peoples;
- thirdly, we aim to ground an institution that will ensure the abidance to these regulations of all involved member states.

We believe that we can solve this issue efficiently and effectively, if all nations and international organisations cooperate. Thank you.

UNSTRUCTURED SPEECH

Honourable chairs, honourable delegates,
The topic of ensuring a fair treatment to Indigenous Peoples is a topic that the United States of America are very passionate about, because we see it as one of the UN's core values that we can guarantee the same treatment and rights to any citizen.
By debating and negotiating, we believe that we can ensure this fair treatment. We should investigate what the indigenous peoples really need regarding regulations, because this will enable us to make a fair decision. We should keep paying attention to this very serious issue, because our attention will prove to be more than necessary. Therefore, the US also believes that we should not let the matter slip from our attention, because only when we pay attention to the issue constantly, we will be able to guarantee the protection of these peoples' rights. Thank you.

COMPLETE SPEECH

Honourable chairs, honourable delegates,

Fully aware of the new ways of recruiting that social media have provided for extremist organisations, the Russian Federation believes that we, as the United Nations should take action, and that we should do it soon. Having considered what is best for our people, all of our people, we believe that we should focus on the following three points: Firstly, we should focus on appropriate consequences for those that are recruiting via social media;

Secondly, we should support local governments instead of intervening; Thirdly, we must put emphasis on supporting the vulnerable citizens of our countries. We believe that, if we work together, these three aims will make sure that social media can no longer provide possibilities for extremists to recruit innocent citizens. In Russia we always say: "With a helper, a thousand things are possible." Together we make this world a better place. Thank you.

INCOMPLETE SPEECH

Honourable chairs, honourable delegates,

Social media have created many ways for extremists to find new members for their organisations. Many people have become victims of extremists, and the Russian Federation believes we should join hands and work together to stop this. To reach our goal, we should focus on the following three points:

Firstly, a greater focus on filtering all social media networks on possible recruiting for extremist organisations;

Secondly, we should focus on spreading more awareness on the dangers of social media;

Thirdly, we should create global guidelines concerning consequences for those who are recruiting via social media.

We believe that we can solve this problem if we work together. Thank you.
